capture your loved one's story
with a unique audio creation that you'll treasure for the rest of your life - guaranteed.

I have a dear friend whose mom passed much too early.

My friend was 22. Years later, she replays her mother's voicemails so she doesn't forget her voice.

The Audiobiography is a product that, through a series of interviews, audio editing, and professional mixing, allows you to listen to your loved one tell their story. Instead of relying on voicemails about errands and quick check-ins, you'll hear their voice, their words, and their history, captured and arranged into an engaging format you'll be able to replay and treasure for the rest of your life.

how it works

step one: consulting call

We'll schedule an hour to discuss the timeline of your loved one's life, your goals for the project, the package options, and what the perfect product would look like for you.

step two: the interviews

Depending on what we decide, either you or I will interview the subject of the project using the questions and timeline we discussed during our call. This may take 1-4 weeks, depending on the goals for the final product.

step three: the production

I will professionally edit, mix, and produce an mp3 file. Depending on the length of the project, this may take 2-4 weeks.

option one: “the one-off”

This package utilizes up to three hours of recorded interviews to create a final audio product between 60 and 90 minutes. The price is dependent on whether I record the interviews or you or a family member records the interviews yourself. There are benefits to both, which we will unpack on our consulting call.

option two: “the series”

This product, slightly different than the first two, is an hour-long collection of interviews of folks in the central person's life. Less to capture a legacy from the central person's perspective, and more to surprise and delight them with a collection of voices telling a story about a beloved person in their life. Makes an excellent birthday, anniversary, retirement, or milestone gift.
